BEATING A RAILROAD.

BY LINCOLN SPRINGFIELD.

The midnight down train was due to start in five minutes. A few dismal lamps, their big globular glasses almost opaque by reason of their griminess, gave a miserable yellow light which seemed not so much to illuminate the platform as to throw into the deep gloom of flickering shadows those parts of the terminus which the discouraged rays of the gas jets failed to penetrate. An elderly porter, who alleged with shameless effrontery a fictitious scarcity of foot-warmers, was making a pocketful of small silver by his mastery of the situation; and in the manufacture of this corner in a comfort for which there was great demand, the elements conspired with him. The night was bitter cold, a hard frost having set in shortly after dusk. The guard of the train appeared to feel the cold keenly; yet, instead of pacing the platform or bustling about to keep his blood circulating, he stood shivering in front of a first-class carriage, looking miserable and dejected in the extreme. Indeed, the man appeared to be ill, and Alec Yorke, a journalist, who had already secured a corner seat in a compartment nearer the engine, approached him with good Samaritan intentions, imagining that a nip from his flask might be peculiary welcome to the official at that moment. But the guard misapprehended the newspaper man's object.

"You cannot have this carriage, sir," he said, with an agitation out of all proportion to the occasion. "It is reserved for an invalid lady and her husband."

"All right, guard," rejoined Mr. Yorke, "but you look off color. Is there anything wrong with you?"

"No, sir, thank you," replied the official, but he was not looking at the person to whom he spoke. His restless eyes had fixed themselves on the entrance to the platform, and a moment later, without any cheery: "This way, sir," he silently, and in a manner which even at that time struck Mr. Yorke as peculiar, held up his arm as a signal to an approaching passenger. It was a signal which had been expected, for it was answered by a similar gesture from a tall, slender man who came hurrying down the platform pushing in front of him a bath-chair. He wore a heavy, fur-lined coat, with a new silk hat and patent leather boots, and the braiding on the coat would have given him a military appearance but for his pronounced stoop and his narrow chest. He wore a neat black mustache, and would have been a better looking man had those keen, penetrating eyes of his been a little less close together.

The guard's agitation had visibly increased upon the arrival of this passenger, but the latter was cool, rapid in his movements, and as dexterous in his actions as if he had rehearsed them, when he came to assist the guard in lifting the occupant of the chair into the carriage. The tall man, with his overcoat flowing open, was between Mr. Yorke and the chair as the invalid was lifted, and Mr. Yorke did not care to indulge an unmannerly curiosty by prying, but he saw that the invalid was a lady, well wrapped up in cloaks and shawls and heavily veiled. The guard having locked the door the passenger beckoned to a porter, gave him a shilling and instructed him to have the chair sent back in the morning to 54 Lambert square, Pimlico. Mr. Yorke had barely reached his seat before the guard blew his whistle. Happening to look at his watch that gentleman was surprised to find that the train had been started two minutes before time.

The ride was without incident until five minutes after passing through Goodridge tunnel, the shout of a man instantly followed by another which might have been the echo of the former, but that it was in a distinctly different voice, interrupted the monotonous rattle of the train, and the driver shut off steam in response to a summons by the communication cord. At that instant the up express rushed quivering by.

The cries had both come from the off-side, and putting his head out of the window, Mr. Yorke, as his eye grew accustomed to the darkness, found that the guard had already gained the foot-board of the carriage from whence the alarm had presumably emanated. The door was swinging wide open, as a sudden stream of light from the guard's bull's eye revealed the tall passenger in the fur-lined overcoat gesticulating and talking vehemently. There were shouts from the guard to the driver, much waving of arms, and then the train backed slowly for a few hundred yards. There the guard and the passengers dismounted, and, ignoring the command of the guard: "Keep your seats, please," uttered in too wavering a tone to turn him from his purpose, Mr. Yorke followed suit. He saw at once that there had been a ghastly occurrence. The trunk of a woman was lying across the up line, and the head had been completely severed from it by the engine-wheels of the up train. It was a spectacle to chill the blood, even partially veiled as the sight was by the mantle of the night, except when the guard, with unsteady hand, threw the light of his lantern on the mutilated remains.

Mr. Yorke's momentary view of the lady of the bath-chair was sufficient to enable him to identify her as the victim of this midnight horror. The wraps were easily recognizable. Looking closer he imagined there was very little blood about for a mutilation so horrible, and, stooping to touch the hand, in spite of the protest of the tall passenger, he found something which aroused his journalistic instincts to their fullest activity, something which sent him running up and down the train for a doctor, something which exasperated him strangely when all his exertions failed to find one. Obviously there was no medical man living near. The spot at which the journey had been interrupted in this startling manner was close to the Evesham Woods, several miles away from the nearest village.

Mr. Yorke ran back to the carriage he had been occupying, made an excited communication to his fellow traveler there, and begged him to come down and corroborate his observation. The gentleman complied, with much composure and discretion, in accordance with the warning he received, and without remark other than a whispered comment to Mr. Yorke.

The journalist expressed his determination of staying behind, and appealed to this railway acquaintance to remain with him. But the latter assured him that the it was utterly impossible. He left his name and address, however, promising to come forward when called upon. Mr. York next turned to the tall passenger, introducing himself as a newspaper man. The tall passenger, who had been scowling blackly over Mr. Yorke's intervention, looked greatly relieved upon hearing that gentleman's profession, and readily consented to give his version of the matter for publication. But, first of all, he desired that note should be taken, before the guard went on the train, that that official admitted the accident was due to the negligence of the railroad company.

"That's right, Mr. Gresswell," said the guard, with bloodless lips.

"Well, just tell this gentleman about it," rejoined the passenger, sharply, and in a tone of annoyance.

The guard recovered something of his composure, apparently, as the effect of this asperity, and proceeded: "A few moments before the—the fatality, I happened to look along the train, and I noticed that the handle of this gentleman's compartment was not fastened."

"How did you know it was this gentleman's compartment from that distance?" interjected Mr. Yorke.

"Of course he didn't know until he got there," put in Mr. Gresswell, hastily.

"No, of course, I didn't know until I got there," repeated the guard. "I suppose, looking back, now its all over, it would have been wiser to have stopped the train, but we were slacking down our speed passing Evesham Woods, as we always do, and the carriage was not far behind my van, so I started to turn the handle. The lady fell out just as I was about to reach the door. With another step I could have prevented the accident."

"Did she fall out backwards or face foremost?" asked the journalist.

"Oh, backwards, sir," was the answer.

"No, I think you're wrong, guard," again interposed Mr. Gresswell, with a snap.

"Let me think a moment," said the guard, placing a shaking hand to his clammy brow. "Yes, she fell face foremost, of course. I can see her now."

Before a barn-door, to do duty as an improvised stretcher, had been fetched from the little lonely cottage a few hundred yards away, the train had proceeded upon its journey, and the guard had left the scene of the tragedy with obvious relief. There was no doctor within five or six miles, Mr. Yorke heard with intense chagrin; and though a messenger was started at once he had to do the journey on foot.

In the meantime the tall passenger, or, as the guard had called him, Mr. Gresswell, told the journalist the story he desired to have published. His wife, he said, had suffered from a painful illness, which he specified, and had been under the care of Dr Steinway, of Victoria street. He was taking her down to the seaside at her own wish. Certain suspicions which had been forming in Mr. Yorke's mind took definite shape from the moment of this lame explanation. If he now became an apparently more sympathetic listener, it was by dint of the simulation which discretion suggested as a cloak to the hostility which began to take possession of him.

"My wife rose to see if it was raining," proceeded Mr. Gresswell, "and looked out of the window."

An obvious lie reflected Mr. Yorke, for the person who was lifted into the carriage in the helpless condition of this invalid could not rise and go to the window unassisted. But he said nothing.

"As I looked around," continued the bereaved husband, "I saw her falling forward. I clutched at her, just caught the edges of her dress, and it came away in my grasp as she disappeared through the door which had been so negligently left unfastened. Here is a piece of material which was left in my grasp, and here is the place from which it was rent."

Now Mr. Yorke saw the reason for that contradiction of the guard by Mr. Gresswell, and the necessity for the story that the lady fell face foremost. The rent was exactly in the centre of the back in the edging.

Before he had finished his interview with Mr. Gresswell, the journalist was confident that he was treading upon the heels of a murder. He was not surprised that there had been no feminine cry of terror. He felt confident that the lady had not met her death on the line at all, but that she had been murdered, and then thrown in front of the express train, in order that her body might not remain available for the proof of the guilty means which had compassed her death. For when he had suddenly stooped down and touched the lifeless hand a minute or two after the alarm had been given, it was cold and stiff. It had been held in the grasp of death for some hours.

Hence his chagrin at the absence of medical evidence to prove this all important point. By the time the country doctor arrived the coldness of the body and the rigor mortis were symptoms quite compatible with death in the manner the tall passenger related. The bitter coldness of the night, said Dr. Trufit, would have led him to expect similar appearances about the corpse even had he arrived considerably earlier. Nor did the doctor's inspection of the scene where the mutilated body had been found suggest to him any want of reconciliation between that which he saw and that which he had been told by Mr. Gresswell. He saw no occasion, he said, to conduct any necropsy before the coroner's inquest was held.

Mr. Yorke rapidly wrote out a guarded report of the incidents of the night, scribbled a letter of instructions to a colleague in London, and prepared the packet containing the two manuscripts for carriage by the next train. His next step was to telegraph to Superintendent James, the head of the railway company's police, to send down his smartest detective. Upon the arrival of Inspector Waring events began to move rapidly. Gresswell, truculent and abusive, was arrested; the coroner was communicated with, and a post mortem examination was ordered. The inspector, like the journalist, felt confident that he was upon the trail of a diabolical murder.

But both, as events proved, were wrong. They had discovered a crime, but it was not murder, as the post mortem examination subsequently proved by showing that death had been due to natural causes. The whole story came out when the guard was arrested.

"Murder!" he repeated, wildly, when the charge was made in the station-master's office at the terminus. "No, before God, it wasn't murder, I'll make a clean breast of it, but don't think for a moment that it was murder. Yes, I know that what I am saying will be taken down as evidence against me, and I'm content it should be so. Listen! Gresswell has been the curse of my existence. I once placed myself in his power by a foolish act which I committed at his instigation. I have never since been able to escape from him. I dare say I cut a pretty contemptible figure, a hulking great chap like me trying to lay the blame off on to an insignificant looking fop like him. But he's got the brain power, and he's got the whip hand over me. He has always made me feel that I might as well try and run an express from London to Glasgow safely with the signals against me all the way as try and cut myself adrift from him. I gave him the slip in Brisbane, came to England, and had worked faithfully for the company and forgotten his evil face almost, until one day I met him near the Elephant and Castle. I haven't known a happy moment since. Gaol will be a relief, so long as it helps me to keep out of his way. He was at me for weeks before he could get me to consent to go in for this thing with him. He lent me a book—I forget the title now, but I've got it at home with his name in it, to prove what I say. It was about a murder, and the agony of the murderer when he came to dispose of the body. He could not hit upon a satisfactory way of getting rid of the corpse, and his victim, who had never harmed him when living, had his revenge when dead by sending the murderer crazy. Gresswell used to discuss this story with me. He brought every conversation round to the one topic, the stupidity of the murderer in not seeing that the corpse so far from being in the way, was really a valuable possession. He illustrated this by saying that his wife was dying rapidly, that he expected to make thousands out of her body. How? I asked; and he went on to explain that if he threw the body out of the train, and proved that she fell out through the company's negligence, there would be a grand haul for compensation, to say nothing of the sums to be got out of the weekly papers which issue railway insurance coupons. I resented being asked to join in this scheme. I told him it filled me with horror. But he talked me down. It was not so much the share of the gain he promised me. On my oath it wasn't. But he seems to have a control over me. I can't explain it, but if he wanted to make me put my arm on the line in front of a goods train, I believe he could do it. He said there was nothing horrible in the affair, that I was as sentimental as a school girl, and then, as far as the mutilation of the body was concerned, his wife had always intended to leave her corpse to some hospital for the dissecting-room. In short, the villain! he got me to agree to be a party to his scheme, and then he hurried me along so fast that I could never put the brake on. He got me to explain spots where there were no dwellings, and therefore no doctors, he got me to lock the carriage for him, and to give him the signal when the up express was approaching, and he got me to prove that the carriage door was not secured through negligence on the part of the company's servants. He drilled me thoroughly, and—well, you know what's happened."—Black and White.

Looking Back Thirty-four Years.

Rev. W. D. Cole, of Milwaukee, writing to the Chicago Times-Herald, says that while at Atlanta last fall he made the acquaintance of Capt. W. A. Fuller, who was conductor of the passenger train seized at Big Shanty by the famous Andrews raiders in 1862. There was no more thrilling adventure during the war than Andrews' raid into Georgia. Like Gettysburg and Franklin everything written about it is read with deep interest. It was a part of the plan of the dauntless raiders to capture Chattanooga, then considered the key to the Southern situation. In Buell's army was General Sill's brigade, in which were the Second, Twenty-first and Thirty-third Ohio. From these regiments came the volunteers who took part in the daring raid. The plan was to penetrate 200 miles within the Confederate lines to Marietta, where the raiding party was to board the train, and at Big Shanty, now called Kenesaw station, the capture was to be made. Big Shanty was a military camp. There were 3000 Confederate soldiers there when the raiders arrived. When the train stopped at the station the Confederate guards were only a short distance away.

While the trainmen and the passengers were at the eating house breakfasting the capture was made, and the raiders started for Chattanooga, intending to burn the bridges behind them, thus cutting off reinforcements from below, and making it possible for Buell to capture Chattanooga. But a series of

A YEARLING.

Census-takers tell us that the largest proportion of deaths occur in the human family during earliest infancy; and when the infant has lived to celebrate the first annual recurrence of its birthday, the little one is supposed to have passed the line of greatest danger, and though it will necessarily encounter unfavorable seasons and surroundings afterwards, still there is strong reason to hope that the youngling may live to maturity.

It is hardly amiss to say that a parallel may be found between the first year's life of a baby and that of a newspaper. Of course all newspapers must have a first year's existence; how many are there that do not survive to reach this limit we do not know, but do not believe the number is very small.

The present issue of THE FRANKLIN REVIEW marks its second number in the second year of its existence. When the first issue was sent out to its readers May 30, 1895, there were not one hundred pledged subscribers. Long before the end of the year each issue numbered fifteen hundred copies, and of these more than twelve hundred are actual paying subscribers, nearly one-half of whom have paid their first year's subscription; and new names are being added to the list every week. The advertising patronage of the REVIEW is not nearly so great as it can be made, because the purpose of the publisher to give the readers as much good reading matter as possible. Much of the advertising it now has has come to it unsolicited; some propositions have been rejected because they were not fit to be in a family newspaper.

The job patronage of the office has grown steadily during the year and is quite an item of the business; the income from this source alone has been quite encouraging.

In the first year of its existence the REVIEW has met with some discouragements but it is matter for encouragement to know that it is now on a self-supporting basis, and if health returns to the publisher and the number of its friends continue to increase—all of which we hope for—not only its continuance but its prosperity is assured.

During the past year the publisher has been many times retaught the lesson that there is much generous, true-hearted friendship in the world and that those who deserve the encouragement and help of friends usually have them.

With sincere thanks and heartfelt gratitude to the friends whose support has enabled the REVIEW to see the end of its first year and with strong hopes based upon these friendships and support, the REVIEW starts into a second year in the hope that it may live to look back from another anniversary and note that its second year's growth has been even more prosperous than that of the first year.

THE CLOSING scenes of the G. A. R. encampment last week in Chambersburg are depicted in another column. From the time of their arrival among us to the hour of their departure nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the week. The veterans enjoyed their stay among us, we were delighted to have them with us and the old soldiers of Franklin county were especially honored by the return of their comrades. For years to come the encampment will be talked of, and the pleasure it gave our people will never be forgotten.

An Old Offender Jailed.

John Goans, a young colored man who has not been long out of jail, is back in the toils once more, this time for an offence which will likely send him to the penitentiary for a good term. Goans comes from Clay Hill, and has highly respected parents. A year or more ago it was found that Goans had been taking horses from W. L. Rhodes, M. W. Kissecker and others about Greencastle and almost driving them to death. The horses were always returned, so Goans could only be convicted of cruelty to animals much to the regret of the authorities. Since his escape from jail Goans has been much about town, and was paying attention to a colored servant in the employ of J. Watson Craig, Philadelphia avenue. Goans knew where the woman kept the key of the wash-house and on Saturday night he entered the building and stole a bicycle belonging to Miss Carrie Craig. He took the wheel out near the "first woods" and hid it in a freight car. The wheel was not missed until Sunday evening and then Detective Johnston was sent for. Johnston soon located the thief, near Grier's warehouse, North Second street, where he had an appointment with the woman. Goans admitted his guilt, told the officer where the wheel was hidden and went with Johnston out to get it. They returned the wheel to Mr. Craig's and on their way to jail Goans gave the officer the slip and ran down an alley. He was captured after a lively run and is now in jail. As the building from which Goans took the wheel is connected with the dwelling house the offense is burglary and punishable with a long imprisonment.

Closing Sessions of the Various Organizations—Officers Elected and Business Despatched—A Glorious Ending to a Brilliant Event.

CLOSE OF THE ENCAMPMENT.

The encampment of the G. A. R., Department of Pennsylvania and the meetings of the various auxilliary organizations were still in session as last week's REVIEW went to press. We present this week a complete account of the subsequent sessions. The elections of Judge Darte as commander, and of Capt. W. H. H. Mackey as senior vice commander, were told of in our columns last week.

The figures were given out Thursday morning, Darte 480, Denworth 330, and the announcement was greeted by the encampment with the most hearty applause. The work of electing the remaining department officers was then proceeded with, and this occupied most of the morning session. The result was: Senior Vice Commander, Captain W. H. H. Mackey, Housum Post, No. 309, Chambersburg; junior vice commander, Frank Button, Andrews Post, No. 70, Corry; medical director, Dr. James G. Sloan, Starkweather Post, No. 60, Monongahela; chaplain, Rev. John W. Sayers, McLean Post, No. 16, Philadelphia.

At the closing session in the afternoon the encampment ordered that on all G. A. R. occasions, the badge of the order shall be the only one worn, doing away with all corps' souvenir or special badges. Thanks were returned to Housum Post, No. 309, and the citizens of Chambersburg for their hospitality and kindness. A resolution to favor the changing of Memorial day to the first Sunday in June was defeated. The encampment adjourned finally at 3 p. m. Thursday.

These members of the council of administration were elected: Wm. J. Rhea, Post 2, Philadelphia; W. J. Patterson, Post 151, Pittsburg; Harry I. Yohn, Post 51, Philadelphia; E. J. Laut, Post 6, Philadelphia; Harvey Miller, Post 55, Philadelphia.

Sixty-nine candidates were nominated for representatives to the national encampment. These were elected: W. H. Bricker, 164, Beaver Falls; Richard Bumgardner, 21, Philadelphia; Byron O. Camp, 453, Montrose; Robert C. Clark, 139, Scranton; J. H. Druckenmiller, 484, Lehighton; Albert Glenn, 224, Sandy Lake; L. R. Keefer, 29, Cressona; James McCormick, 5, Philadelphia; D. W. Miller, 42, Lebanon; Emil Poerstel, 3, Pittsburg; W. H. Rodgers, 134, Mifflintown; Edwin Walton, 63, Philadelphia; J. B. Brown, 356, Duke Centre; Isaac C. Booth, 10, Philadelphia; J. A. Clifton, 125, Tarentum; Daniel Donne, 23, Pottsville; Wm. M. Eisenhower, 16, Reading; George A. Guernsey, 91, Canton; O. M. Head, 259, Pittsburg; Owen Jones, 191, Philadelphia; A. C. Koser, 415, Mechanicsburg; George W. Robinson, 274, Tionesta; George S. Shattuck, 331, Meadville; Wm. Stiles, 8, Philadelphia; Jas. D. Walker, 88, Allegheny; Amos K. Crist, 118, Columbia; T. D. Cunningham, 137, Blairsville; Joseph T. Evans, 157, Pittsburg; Joseph Fisher, 151, Pittsburg; Robt. M. Green, 1, Philadelphia; J. D. Hicks, 468, Altoona; D. A. Kline, 109, Plymouth; Dan C. Kendig, 67, Erie; John Lee, 117, Pittsburg; Charles Miller, 220, Franklin; Jas. H. Minds, 293, Houtzdale; Henry C. Sayers, 367, Waynesburg; Samuel P. Town, 2, Philadelphia.

Commander Darte Thursday evening announced the following appointments: Assistant adjutant general, James F. Morrison, Philadelphia; assistant quartermaster general, Abram Levering, Philadelphia; department inspector, Charles A. Suydam, Philadelphia. The remainder of the staff appointments will be made in several weeks. Those given out Thursday evening show that Judge Darte emphatically approves of the work at department headquarters in Philadelphia during the past year and that the same policy which marked the successful term of Past Commander Cumings will be followed.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS.

Nearly all of Wednesday afternoon session of the Woman's Relief Corps was taken up with the election of three officers, so lively were the contests for positions. Those chosen were: Mrs. Fannie Boyden, Moody Corps, No. 12, Susquehanna, president; Mrs. Elizabeth Ewing, Phœnixville, senior vice president; Mrs. Frances E. Bricker, Corps No. 56, Beaver Falls, junior vice president.

Thursday morning the work of the ritual was exemplified at G. A. R. hall and when the sessions were resumed in the court house Mrs. M. D. Roche, Mrs. M. E. Moreland and Mrs. Kate Heefner presented greetings from the Ladies of the G. A. R. Past Department Commander Thomas G. Sample, of the orphans' school commission, Pittsburg, and Comrade G. Harry Davis, Post 1, Philadelphia, presented greetings from the G. A. R. The election of the remainder of the officers occupied the closing hours.

At the afternoon session Mrs. Emma S. Ludwig, past department president, Miss Kate W. Scott and Mrs. Emma Richards were sent with the greetings of the convention to the G. A. R. encampment in Rosedale. They were escorted to the stage by Commander-elect Darte, Past Commander Sample and Adjutant General Morrison, where they were cordially received by Commander Cumings who spoke eloquently of the work of the W. R. C. The commander-elect in a beautiful speech commended the order for its faithful and efficient service.

On the return of the greeting committee from Rosedale the convention was favored with a call from Past National Adjutant General Buist, Chicago, and Commander Cumings. Comrade Buist spoke eloquently of the W. R. C. and the grand work it is doing. Commander Cumings excused himself from making a speech as he had expressed himself to the committee who had carried greetings to the G. A. R. and said he had merely come to introduce General Buist who had visited every department of the W. R. C. except that of Pennsylvania.

The election af officers was then completed, with this result: Treasurer, Mrs. Martha Sherman, Kendall Creek; chaplain, Mrs. Adelia Lord, Franklin Corps, No. 11; Mrs. Shultz, Lock Haven; Mrs. H. H. Cumings, Tidioute; Mrs. Houck, Mechanicsburg, and Mrs. Leslie, Pittsburg, were chosen members of the executive board. Mrs. Harris, Philadelphia, a colored delegate, was elected delegate-at-large to the national encampment. The other delegates are: Mrs. Bowman, Homestead; Mrs. Mumford, Mauch Chunk; Mrs. Wegley, Butler; Mrs. Morgan, Tyrone; Mrs. Leslie, Avalon; Mrs. Nusbaum, Wesleyville; Mrs. Hubbard, Bradford; Mrs. Brown, Harrisburg. The newly elected officers were then installed by Mrs. Helen S. Morrison, past department president. Mrs. Boyden, the newly elected president, appointed these members of her staff: Secretary, Mrs. Abbie Lynch, Allegheny; inspector, Mrs. Olive Bronson, Susquehanna; instituting and installing officer, Mrs. Lizzie Carpenter, Lock Haven; counsellor, Mrs. Annie M. Wilbur; Warren. The convention then adjourned to meet at Johnstown in 1897.

LADIES OF THE G. A. R.

Housum Circle, No. 49, Ladies of the G. A. R., Wednesday evening gave a reception to the Ladies of the G. A. R. of the state and the G. A. R. delegates in Co. C's armory. An immense crowd of people was present and the reception proved one of the most pleasant incidents of the week. Hon. Wm. Hutchison, Salem, Ohio, a nephew of Mrs. A. C. McGrath, delivered the address of welcome in a felicitous manner. Mrs. Hurst, president of the National Circle, made the response. The grand march, which followed the addresses, was led by A. C. McGrath, adjutant of Housum Post, and Mrs. Hurst. Afterward there was dancing for several hours.

It was not until after ten o'clock Thursday night that the Ladies of the G. A. R. finally adjourned their sessions. Officers were installed and presentations of jewels were made.

The list of officers elected is: Mrs. Ada L. Shannon, Philadelphia, president; Mrs. Lydia J. Smith, Allegheny, senior vice president; Mrs. Clifton, Tarentum, junior vice president; Mrs. Maggie Hoover, Steelton, treasurer; council of administration, Mrs. M. D. Roche, Scranton; Mrs. Mary Howard, Philadelphia; Mrs. Joseph Slicker, Pittsburg; delegates to national convention, Mrs. Elmira Scritchfield, Braddock, Mrs. Julia P. Shade, Mrs. Annie Michener, Mrs. Sawyer and Mrs. Haines, Philadelphia, and Mrs Cline, president of home at Hawkkins' station, Mrs. Cornelia B. Foulke, Pittsburg; chaplain, Mrs. Margaret Edmunds, Braddock.

REUNIONS.

The survivors of the 77th Regt. Pa. Vol. and of Independent battery B held a reunion Wednesday afternoon and evening in Housum post hall. Captain George W. Skinner, president of the association, presided and J. Campbell Stanton, acted as secretary. A number of addresses were made by members of the battery, the most notable being by Capt. Skinner, Lieut. Lutjie, Erie; Corporal Horton, Fulton county, and by H. H. Woodal of the 11th Cav. Lieut. Jacob West, St. Thomas, who is aged 74 years, and who was a soldier in the late war, the Mexican war and one or two Indian wars, although in a feeble state of health, made a very interesting address, dealing with his army experiences. A large number of ladies and other relatives of the members of these organizations were present and were interested spectators of the proceedings. Among them were the widow and daughter of Col. Peter B. Housum, who was killed at Stone River and whose remains lie in Cedar Grove cemetery. On motion of Corporal Horton a recess was taken and all the members paid their respects to Mrs. Housum, passing in line before her and shaking her hand. In his address Lieut. Lutjie paid a high tribute to the memory of Capt. Samuel F. McDowell, who was killed in the Atlanta campaign, while in command of battery B, before he was 20 years old.

The officers were re-elected as follows: President, Geo. W. Skinner; vice presidents, H. S. Wishart, Fulton county; Capt. Jno. W. Kreps, Allegheny county; secretary, J. Campbell Stanton; treasurer, Wm. J. Prentice. Seventy-five survivors of the regiment were present.

Milton S. Crawford and a number of the survivors of the 21st Pa. Cav. met at the National Hotel Wednesday afternoon and had a very pleasant reunion.

Wednesday afternoon the Seventeenth Pennsylvania cavalry held its fourth reunion in the room of Columbus lodge, I. O. O. F. Col. Durbin was elected president and other officers were chosen. Addresses were made by Adjutant Clark, Rev. E. H. Leisenring and others, and a program of music and recitations was given. Next year's meeting will be in Gettysburg.

The Central grand army association, composed of the posts of Lancaster, Dauphin, Berks, Lebanon, Chester, York and Adams counties, held a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. rooms Thursday morning, at which time District Commander H. C. Demming, Harrisburg; District Chaplain A. C. Leonard, and Commissary J. A. Stoler, Lancaster, in connection with Chairman A. J. Fager, Harrisburg, outlined an extensive program for a reunion of the association to be held at Harrisburg September 24 and 25.

The 158th Regt. Pa. Vol. held a reunion in Housum post hall Wednesday morning. There were present 109 members. The old officers were re-elected. They consist of Major M. G. Hale, Shippensburg, president; D. M. Sheller, secretary, and Peter Heefner treasurer. Eight deaths in the regiment were reported during the past year. The next reunion will be held in Carlisle the last Wednesday in May 1897.

A meeting of the 49th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers was held on Thursday. About fifty comrades were present. The following officers were elected. President Samuel T. Frain; vice presidents, ten members of the regiment; secretary, R. S. Westbrook; treasurer, J. L. Barton; chaplain, Jesse B. Bartley. Mr. Westbrook insisted upon resigning as secretary, but his comrades persisted in keeping him at his post, where he has served so well. The next reunion will be held at Port Royal, Pa., in 1897.

AROUND THE CAMP FIRE.

The camp fire in Rosedale Wednesday night was at all times thronged and it proved to be one of the most pleasant features of the week. Thos. J. Stewart was the presiding officer and he was most happy in his presentation of the different speakers, every one being made the object of his original humor.

The exercises were opened by a selection, "The March of the Guard," by a male chorus consisting of R. S. Smiley, B. B. Holler, H. B. Ganoe, J. N. Dyson, H. H. Woodal, Jun., Chas. B. Dyson, H. B. McNulty and C. Price Speer. Miss Kate Flinder was the accompanist.

In the absence of the commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. Quartermaster J. W. Buist, Illinois, congratulated the state department upon its selection of Chambersburg for the annual encampment. He was glad, he said, to see our national flag in such abundance and deplored the fact that the south had not as yet forgotten the past, in that our flag was rarely seen in the southern states, except on very rare occasions. In conclusion he thanked the women of the country for what they have done and what they are now doing for the relief of the aged veterans. Retiring Department Commander H. H. Cumings expressed the acknowledgments of the G. A. R. for the treatment received at the hands of the people of Chambersburg.

The male chorus sang "Still Their Hearts are Young."

Past Department Commander Gen. J. P. S. Gobin, Lebanon, was next introduced and in brief said, "Chambersburg, beautiful in its location, greets the soldiers and the veterans and the soldier greets Chambersburg. A Georgian upon a raid to the country adjoining your beautiful city said: "If God made this country, who in hell made Georgia." In continuing he compared the soldiers of different nations and clearly showed the superior courage of those engaged in the late war. Of the six hundred gallant British at Balaklava forty-two per cent. were killed; only eighteen per cent. of a small Minnesota regiment survived a desperate charge at Gettysburg. Miss Brenisholz, Greencastle, in a very pleasing manner recited "The Silent Army of Memorial Day."

The coming department commander, Judge Darte, Wilkesbarre, took the occasion to deny the credited report of the existence of "bad blood" in the G. A. R. He was glad the civil war decided one fundamental principle, the ruling of the majority. He added that he hoped the young men of the country would endeavor to maintain the government that had been established only by the shedding of blood, by cultivating true, honest citizenship. Rev. John W. Sayers, department chaplain for the last twenty-five years, during the course of his remarks observed the interest that has been manifested for the soldiers' orphans and thanked the Woman's relief corps for their generous aid.

Col. Thomas G. Sample said that he had opposed Chambersburg at the last encampment as a place for the present encampment because he had thought Chambersburg could not entertain the visiting veterans. He had made a mistake, he cheerfully admitted, as the entertainment was very liberal. A medley of patriotic airs was next sung by the chorus.

Hon. Thad. M. Mahon introduced Congressman Hicks, Altoona, who expressed his pleasure in being among the hospitable people of a town that could fully appreciate the efforts of the survivors of the grand army. In concluding he read a poem illustrative of army life. Comrade G. H. Davis followed in a very humorous speech. For the first time, he said, he thoroughly recognized the true worth of Scotch-Irish hospitality. Rev. F. Haury, chaplain of Post 331, Meadville, was the last speaker and in behalf of the oppressed race he thanked the G. A. R. for the blessings that had been obtained by his people only at the sacrifice of many lives. The exercises were concluded by a good night song by the male chorus.

NOTES.

A meeting of the Pennsylvania Memorial Home Association was held which was presided over by Mrs. Helen Morrison, Brookville. This association has done excellent work in finding homes for children. Nearly $39,000 have been given them by the corps and private individuals, and they hope now to raise sufficient to wipe out the remaining $8000 of debt. The following board of directors was elected: President, Mrs. Annie Wittenmeyer, Sanatoga; vice president, W. H. Gray, Brookville; secretary, Miss Kate McDonald, Titusville; directors, Mrs. Mary A. Whitehill, Brookville; Mrs. Jennie M. Reavley, Erie; Mrs. Bowman, Homestead; Mrs. Sarah Michener, Renova; Mrs. Marian Whitney, Renova; A. F. Thompson, Lykens.

It is a rule in the G. A. R. that the post or posts in the town or city which entertains the encampment must pay all of the local expenses connected therewith, and Housum post will have to pay bills amounting to about $1,200. There was collected from the list of subscriptions made by the citizens of the town about $900. The largest item of expense was the matter of the official badges. These were given to every delegate and entitled them to admission to all meetings of the encampment. Chairman Mackey of the finance committee says that all the bills will be paid and a surplus remain.

The matter of the sale of liquor on Memorial Day came up in the encampment when the report of the committee on resolutions was read. One of the resolutions requested the legislature to pass an act prohibiting the sale of liquor on that day. This resolution went through with a rush and also those thanking Housum Post and the citizens of Chambersburg for the courtesies extended the encampment.

The Ladies of the G. A. R., Col. P. B. Housum Circle, Chambersburg, are entitled to the credit for the interior decorations of the Central church and the court house when the sessions of the Ladies of the G. A. R. and of the Woman's Relief Corps were held. They raised a fund for this purpose and will probably come out even on the expenses. Florist Fisher supplied the palms which were so numerous at both places of meetings. The Woman's Relief Corps has no corps in Chambersburg, the charter of the corps being dead.

A dispatch from Williamsport says: "James B. Denworth, the recent candidate for department commander of the G. A. R. of Pennsylvania at the Chambersburg encampment, was arrested and held in $300 bail by United States Commissioner Bently, Saturday afternoon, charged with withholding $444.20 pension money from Mrs. Irene Brookens, a pensioner, contrary to the laws of the United States. The arrest was a big surprise to Mr. Denworth's friends, as on June 1 Mrs. Brookens is alleged to have informed several intimate friends of Mr. Denworth that if ever there was an honest man it was Mr. Denworth and that if it had not been for him she and her children would have starved." The foregoing matter was much talked of in Chambersburg last week, as it had been made the basis of a circular which had been issued against Col. Denworth. Comrade Denworth made many friends here and all will hope that the matter will be satisfactorily explained.

Judge Alfred Darte, who was last week elected department commander of the G. A. R., was given an enthusiastic reception by the members of Conyngham Post, Wilkes-Barre, upon his return home from Gettysburg Saturday night When the train rolled into the depot there was firing of cannon and a lavish display of fireworks. Commander Darte will be given a formal reception by the G. A. R. posts of the county some day this week.

Eighteen car loads made up the excursion which left the W. M. R. R. station Friday morning bound for Gettysburg to see the dedication of the monuments to Generals Meade and Hancock. The veterans had a glorious time roaming over the battlefield and the dedication ceremonies were imposing. Most of our visitors went directly home from Gettysburg. Several hundred came back to Chambersburg Friday night and returned to their homes Saturday. Thus ended what was by far the most memorable event in Chambersburg since the war.

Dunker General Conference.

The General Conference of the Dunker church in the United States at Ottawa, Kan., just concluded, was largely attended and a great success. The Brethren were delighted with their treatment. The next meeting will be held in the Eastern District of Maryland.

The Bishops on the standing committee from this section were, Eastern Pennsylvania, F. P. Cassel; Southern Pennsylvania, Jacob Hollinger; Eastern Maryland, E. W. Stoner, S. H. Utz; Western, Md., Eli Yourtee.

The missionary board reported the missions to India, Denmark, Smyrna and Chicago in a prosperous condition. Over 2,000,000 pages of tracts have been distributed the past year. Funds in committees' hands, $110,121.30.

An effort was made for a revision of the divorce rules, the endeavor being to secure leniency. Ohio delegates presented a sweeping denunciation of the use of tobacco.

Western land agents made somewhat of a harvest, persuading well-to-do Brethren to buy land and settle. Their success was aided by the Gospel Messenger publishing the rose colored advertisements.

Life insurance—always shunned hitherto—was this year introduced by the following query from Northern Illinois.

"The Pine Creek Church petition the annual meeting, through the district meeting, to appoint a committee of five brethren to investigate the subject of life insurance, to find out whether or not there are any life insurance companies who issue policies which the brethren may accept without violating any gospel principle. This committee to report to the next annual meeting."

On mission work the church is taking advanced ground, having active mission stations in Sweden and Denmark, Smyrna, Asia Minor and Budsar, India.

X RAYS AGAIN!

The Cathode Rays are not needed to see that by your liberal patronage during our great "Fire Sale," nearly our whole stock was disposed of in an incredibly short time. We are therefore enabled to resume business with almost an entire new stock of Dry Goods, Dress Goods and Notions, within a short time after our sacrifice sale. You helped us by buying our damaged goods quickly, saving us both time and further loss. Now we are going to let you reap the benefit we derived in quickly turning our former stock into ready cash, enabling us to take advantage of a market thatw as over stocked, with more bargains in new and seasonable goods than it has ever been our fortune to strike before. But strike it we did, and at just the right time when ready cash went further than we ever knew it to go. As a result of our good buying last week in the cities our pavement has been filled with box upon box this week of these purchases. To show our appreciation of your kindness to us we are going to mark our goods at lower figures and smaller profits than ever was known. We bought very cheap and lots of goods we bought at prices that we cannot buy at again. Nevertheless we are going to give to the people every bargain we got ourselves. The prices will be such that it will make an impression that will last for years to come. We care not for former criticism when we were blamed for selling damaged goods too low and to prove it we are going right into this sale of cut prices and on brand new goods with the supreme confidence that the people appreciate us. We won't mention prices here save one special lot of goods, wide, all wool serges, in the new colorings for spring, that we intend to sell for 20c. This one line of goods will set you thinking; when you see them they will start you talking. 'Tis but a taste of the good things we have—only one among many. An early visit will pay you. Look through our line. We have never shown such a stock before. New goods, new ideas, new prices, all go to mark a new era in our business. And rest assured we will never be satisfied in this new business until we rise to the very top and our store will be talked of more than all the others in the Cumberland Valley.

Yours truly,

A WORD IN PASSING.

Town and County Briefs With a Bit of Comment—Happenings of the Week and a Forecast of Coming Events.

Wm. L. Middlekauff has secured the contract to remodel the Greencastle Reformed church. A tower will be added and the interior improved.

Mercersburg has a "healer" named Keyser, who patterns after the so-called western healer, Schlatter, and is claimed to have effected some cures.

The people of the vicinity of Mercersburg are talking of founding a co-operative creamery on the plan of that which has been so successful at Williamson.

Owing to a severe attack of rheumatism the REVIEW man was not able to enjoy the encampment as much as he would have done if he had been entirely well. It was very pleasant, however, to have kindly greetings and expressions of sympathy from many old friends.

Uriah S. Hull has resigned his position in the C. V. R. R. shops and retired from active work. He is now over three-score-years-and-ten and has completed his 55 years uninterrupted service with the company. In all those years he never lost a day by sickness until this past winter.

Messrs. Henninger and Shinabrook have just issued a very handsome score card. Besides giving a complete schedule of Cumberland Valley games they will give a change of batting order and standing of clubs each game during the season. They will be for sale on the grounds at 5 cents a copy.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Items of Interest About Your and Our Friends and Those Whom We All Know.

Miss Cora Hockenberry, Concord, was a town visitor during encampment.

Jacob Giles and family Richmond, visited friends in town during encampment week.

Mrs. P. M. Shoemaker, Upper Strasburg, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Samuel Gelwix.

Miss Margaret Ferguson, Path Valley, has been the guest of Capt. W. H. H. Mackey's family.

Charles W. Burkholder, near Newburg, is lying seriously ill at his home with spinal meningitis

Miss Jennie McGowan, Philadelphia avenue, left Wednesday on a visit to friends in Pittsburg.

Miss Minnie Germer, Erie, will spend the summer with her aunt, Mrs. Jacob Bootz, Baltimore avenue.

A. W. Burkholder, Newburg, was in town on business Saturday and was a pleasant and profitable caller at the REVIEW office.

Miss Anna Byers, North Main street, left Tuesday for an extended visit to her mother, sister and brother, Keokuk, Iowa, and other points west.

Jacob Nusbaum, Stenger, was a caller at the REVIEW affice this morning. Mr. Nusbaum is pleased with the paper and showed it by advancing his subscription to '97.

S. B. Woollett and Mrs. Woollett of the Washington House, McConnellsburg, were among those who enjoyed themselves here during Wednesday and Thursday.

W. A. Stinger and Mrs. Stinger, Willow Hill, spent from Tuesday to Thursday in town seeing the sights, renewing old acquaintances and enjoying themselves generally.

Dr. P. M. Cook, Fulton county's Democratic candidate for the legislature, let the light of his cheery countenance shine upon many friends here during the two busy days of last week.

W. Frank Stouteagle and J. A. Irwin were among the McConnellsburg merchants who took in the sights of the encampment. Mr. Irwin was accompanied by his son Charles and Morse Sloan.

Col. W. Hayes Grier, of the Columbia Independent who makes the Democratic fur fly by his arraignment of unscrupulous Democratic bosses was also a brief but very welcome caller at the REVIEW office.

Dr. George S. Hull is so much improved in health by his stay in California that he will remain east for a month or two. Mrs. Hull will also come east on a visit to her parents. Dr. and Mrs. Hull will return to California in about two months.

Among the newspaper fraternity who paid their respects to the REVIEW office during the encampment last week was Col. Bowman of the Everett Republican, who has worked energetically in the editorial harness for many years and still finds his occupation a very pleasant one.

Among the other newspaper neighbors who gave us kindly greetings on the street Wednesday were J. C. Wagner, of the Shippensburg News and 'Squire Slick of the Mercersburg Journal. Capt. Harvey Wishart and Hon. S. P. Wishart, Wells Valley, Fulton county, paid the office a very pleasant visit.

Godfrey Greenawalt came up from Philadelphia to attend the reunion of the 11th Penna. Cav. He found employment for a day or two shaking hands with old comrades and other old friends. He and one other trooper of Company D, of the 11th were the only two of the company who rode the same horse from the beginning to the close of the war.

Resolutions of Respect.

Mercersburg Castle, K. G. E., has passed the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Supreme Ruler of the universe in his allwise providence to call from our midst our beloved Sir Knight and brother, J. Rush Clapsaddle.

WHEREAS, While we most humbly bow to the will of Him who doeth all things well, yet we cannot but feel that our order has been bereft of a well-beloved brother whose memory we will ever cherish for his good qualities and whose virtues we will emulate.

WHEREAS, Our brother has been called to lay down his armor, unclasp his shield and sheathe his sword.

Resolved, That we the remaining brothers of Mercersburg Castle tender the bereaved family and friends of our departed brother our heart-felt sympathy and condolence, and call upon God who knoweth all things to comfort and sustain them in this their time of need. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of our deceased brother and also that a copy be placed upon the records of our Castle and also be published in the county papers.

Committee: R. W. RUNYAN, J. V. PHIEL, E. A. HUDSON.

Brother Clapsaddle was a charter member of Mercersburg Castle and was known as an exemplary Christian. He is gone and all shall miss him; we believe that he is enjoying the Castle above with the smile of the Supreme Chief of the universe.

TOWN AND TOWNSHIP.

The Events of the County as Chronicled by "Review" Correspondents—Summary of the Week's News.

MEMORIAL DAY AT FORT LOUDON.

Memorial Day has been the subject of many flattering comments here both by visitors and citizens who witnessed the ceremonies on that day. It is said that never before in the history of our town did heart and hand join so earnestly and cheerfully in making preparations for this eventful occasion, sacred to the immortal memory of the heroic dead, whose dust and ashes repose beneath the mounds we lovingly strew with flowers. The old veteran, scarred and maimed by the arduous service and toil of four years' devastating war, the middle aged, and little children all took part in decorating the graves of the dead soldiers with flowers, most brilliant and fragrant wreathed into gems of beauty, and reviving anew in loving memory their heroic deeds. For several days and evenings before Decoration day many willing and cheerful hands were employed in making preparations for the occasion that was to be the grandest success of the kind in our history, an occasion that would have done full justice and been a credit to any of our much larger towns. At each end of town a beautiful arch was erected, decorated with flags and evergreen. The large iron bridge on the turnpike, spanning the creek near the lower end of town was decorated at each entrance with evergreen and a number of small flags. These general decorations together with the very brilliant and profuse decorations of private dwellings, made our town put on a patriotic and gala appearance. People began to come into town at an early hour in the day, and by the time the parade was ready to start from the diamond at one o'clock, there had come people from all parts of this vicinity, swelling the crowd to six or seven hundred persons. The parade was headed by marshalls, Wm. Martin and John Vance; followed by the Metal band; the old soldiers commanded by Capt. Jacob Snyder; large float drawn by four horses and bearing forty-four girls dressed in white with sashes of red, white and blue; four young men bearing float containing the flowers; a number of horsemen; Knights of the Golden Eagle; P. O. S. of A.; surrey conveying Hon. Jas. W. Carson and Rev. G. S. Gill, the speakers for the occasion. It was a grand and imposing sight to see the float carrying the forty-four little girls, and inspiring to hear them as they sang along the parade and at the cemeteries our sweet, national airs led on the cornet by Milton Cromer. This feature of the parade elicited much favorable comment and applause, and reflected great credit upon the committee, which was composed of the following persons, Chas. Ford, Jno. H. Metz, Bert Stinger, Joe Rotz, Wm. Martin, Jun., Price Ford and Wm. Hassler. The parade proceeded to the Hill cemetery and back to the cemeteries in town, and having placed a token of love and gratitude upon the graves of each in order, the parade moved to the upper end of town as far as the Valley road and returned to the diamond again. It was readily seen that the crowd was far too large for the church where it was intended at first that the speaking should be held. So the crowd assembled in the diamond in front of the Eagle Hotel, where the addresses were delivered from a stand temporarily erected for the occasion. An organ was placed near by the stand, and here the melody of organ and cornets blended with scores of human voices in singing our national airs. The speaking began with an address of welcome by Rev. G. S. Gill. He seemed to touch a responsive chord in the hearts of his hearers as he referred to the sad memories which Memorial day recalls, and to the patriotic duty of American citizens. He closed his address with a hearty welcome to all and with expressions of gratitude and congratulations to the old veteran, gratitude for their service in defense of country, and congratulations that a kind Providence permitted them to return home to greet loved ones and enjoy the blessings of the commonwealth; that while a thousand fell at their side and ten thousand at their right hand, Providence covered them with His wings and permitted them to return home for some good purpose and to receive the plaudits of their fellow countrymen. The address by the Hon. Jas. W. Carson was an able and profound one. He made a clear statement of the difference between the states' rights doctrine and the centralized form of government. He closed with an eloquent and patriotic flight of oratory. All through his excellent address he held the closest attention of his hearers. After the speaking a selection was sung and thus ended a successful and happy day for Fort Loudon.

CONCORD.

Mrs. Gamble of Burnt Cabins, expects to spend several weeks in this place.

Jerry Hammond and family were in Chambersburg last week.—Budd Hockenberry and sister, Cora, visited relatives in Chambersburg and took in the encampment.

John H. Miller and family spent Sunday in Burnt Cabins.

A. S. Little and wife are visiting relatives near Bridgeport.

Edith Little is visiting her sister in Birmingham.

Mr. Scott and wife, McConnellsburg, are the guests of Hugh Wallace near town.

Edgar Johns is suffering with the measles.

M. E. McKim was sworn in as a school director on Monday.

James H. Little is making some repairs to his mill.

A new pump was placed in the town well Monday, also a large watering trough for the public.

DOYLESBURG.

James E. Reed left on Tuesday for Tipton, Blair county.

One night recently dogs got among W. S. McVitty's sheep and killed six.

W. M. Beirly of Center county and Mrs. Lucinda Briggs, of Doylesburg, were married June 2, by Rev. J. W. Parris.

The members of St. Mary's Catholic church have purchased a fine organ to be placed in the church. The solicitor for Doylesburg and vicinity raised $27.50 towards the new organ.

Children's day service will be held at the M. P. church, Doylesburg, Sunday, June 14.

Some of the visitors we noticed in these parts lately were Milo Mumper, New Germantown; Robert Robertson, Waterloo; John Fortney, Reed's Gap.

There will be a large festival and platform dance near Doylesburg July 4th. There will be fireworks in the evening.

It is rumored that another large saw mill will move to Burns Valley soon, on the Campbell tract of timber.

The Path Valley and Tuscarora District Sabbath School Association will be held in the Methodist Episcopal church at Concord, Wednesday and Thursday, June 24 and 25.

At the opening session Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the subjects for discussion will be: "Objects of the Sunday School, Rev. Thomas Dobbins; Lesson Helps and how to use them, Miss Mary W. McCulloch; The use of the catechism in the Sunday School, Dr. A. E. Lynn; Some mistakes of Sunday school teachers, D. O. Shearer; Model bible class, (Lesson June 28), Rev. John H. Mortimer; How to develop a spirit of beneficence in the Sunday school scholar, Jno. Morrow; Conscience—How to develop it in the young, Prof. Geo. Cisney; Some needs of the Sunday school—a paper by Rev. J. Stuart; The essential elements of young manhood and womanhood, Rev. J. F. Diener. General discussion will follow the opening of each subject. The exercises will be interspersed with music led by that prince of singers, Prof. J. C. Conn. All branches of the Christian church are represented in the convention. Thursday evening, June 25, there will be a lecture by Rev. E. H. Wallace, of Saxton, Pa. Subject, "Fishing on the Wrong Side."

METAL.

The Presbyterian Sunday school of Metal held their Children's day service May 31st, which was quite an enjoyable affair. There was a large attendance, a number of the members of the Methodist school being present. The service used was entitled "The Good Shepherd."

The pastor, Rev. J. Smith Gordon, was present and made a very interesting and instructive address and the children, under the leadership of Miss Daisy G. Wilson, performed their parts very well, and last but not least, the collection taken at the close of the service amounted to $6.70, which we think was quite a liberal collection.

The memorial exercises at Fannettsburg and Metal were very poorly attended—why? neglect or lack of patriotism. And the flag pole at Metal, why isn't the rope fixed so that the few grand old veterans who still live in the vicinity may see Old Glory floating in the breeze on every national holiday at least, and that the rising generation may be taught to revere the old soldier and the flag he fought so nobly for.

Sunshine and showers are helping the corn and oats which both promise a good crop. The wheat does not promise a heavy crop, something new for Path Valley.

J. J. L.

QUINCY.

E. J. Small, Esq., died very suddenly at his home, Altodale, Wednesday evening, from apoplexy. He had not been in robust health for a week and told some of his family Wednesday evening, that he felt so tired he believed he would lie down. He went to his room and later in the evening his nephew, J. R. Small, called to see him. He was sent to his room and there found his uncle a corpse. The deceased spent the greater part of his life about Altodale, where he was extensively engaged in merchandizing. When Mont Alto furnace was in operation he did a very large business. He was justice of the peace for Quincy township for about 25 years and his decisions in all that time were just and right. He was a good, pious man, respected and honored in the community. He was a faithful and carnest member of the Methodist church. He exerted a great influence for good in his community, always took a deep interest in the work of his church and was diligent in laboring to build up Christ's kingdom there. He was an active officer in his congregation up to the time of his unexpected death and frequently represented his school in the Sabbath school conventions of Franklin county. He was known and very highly esteemed by many ministers of his church. He will be missed by his congregation. Two sons survive him: E. M. Small, who is in very delicate health, and E. B. Small His funeral took place Sunday at 10 a. m. at his home in Altodale. The sermon was preached in the Methodist church after which he was laid to rest in the graveyard at Fetterhoff's chapel, beside his wife and daughter. He was aged about 66 years.

The two daughters of Isaac Stauffer, Quincy, were called to his bedside about ten days ago on account of his severe illness. He is suffering from an attack of rheumatism. His youngest daughter, Della, could remain with him but a few days, however, as she received news that her husband had been taken ill with typhoid fever and Monday she went to his bedside. We will be very glad to hear that Mr. Stauffer will recover.

Sunday evening the members of the U. B. church, Quincy, held children's day exercises. Saturday evening the church was very handsomely decorated and a very large crowd of people gathered at the church to witness the exercises.

George D. Benedict, Mt. Zion, was the first farmer in our township to cut grass. He mowed his meadow Saturday and other farmers will commence cutting Saturday next, as the clover is fast dying. The grass crop is the shortest in Quincy township for ten or twelve years and many farmers will be compelled to make sale of some of their cattle on account of the scarcity of hay.

STENGER.

On Sunday last during the storm that passed over this section, the lightning struck Adam Rexroth's barn near Stenger and knocked two horses down in their stalls, stunning them. The barn was set on fire but the flames were extinguished without much damage being done. Mr. Rexroth was slightly stunned at the same time.

During the same storm the lightning struck a large pine tree in the mountain near Mr. Rexroth's place. The tree caught fire and was consumed, making a brilliant spectacle.

Grain is looking well in this section and corn and grass give promise of good crops.

UPTON.

A valuable horse belonging to John Stuff died on Monday. This is the second horse that has died for Mr. Stuff during the past two weeks.

Upton and vicinity has been visited by many heavy rains during the past three weeks and the corn, oats and grass are growing nicely.

Quite a number of our people attended the G. A. R. encampment last week.

Miss Estelle W. Boyd, accompanied by her nieces, Misses Belle and Catherine Gillan, left on Tuesday for South Auburn, Nebraska, where they will remain with relatives until October.

William Stumbaugh, Guitner's school house, was the guest of Jacob Welsh on Tuesday of last week.

Miss Minnie Raymer moved to Greencastle last week, where she will reside in the future.

Jacob S. Fleming is confined to the house with a severe attack of rheumatism.

D. W. Mickley and wife, Chambersburg, spent Sunday with Mr. Mickley's father, Henry Mickley of this place.

The new house of Mrs. Huber is now under roof and presents a neat appearance.

George R. Diehl will raise his new barn on his farm several miles east of here on Thursday of this week.

Court House Notes.

The will of Catharine Snider, late of Hamilton township, deceased, has been probated. It gives $50 to each of her brothers, J. Newton Snider and David C. Snider. The balance of the estate is to be divided equally between her brothers and Mrs. Anna West, Margaret Gruber, Mrs. Serenus Wagner, Mrs. Laura J. Etter and Harry K. Baker, husband of her deceased sister. Mary E. J. Newton Snider is appointed executor. The will was made April 8, 1896.

The will of Katie Sollenberger, late of Letterkenny township, deceased, has been probated. It bequeaths $50 to the bishop of the River Brethren church for keeping her grave in order. The rest of her property is divided among her brother Abraham, W. R. Sollenberger and her sisters Elizabeth and Maria Sollenberger. These three heirs are made executors. The will was made September 21, 1893.

John A. Witherspoon, D. D. Swanger Joseph B. Davison. commissioners appointed by the court to report upon the matter of the division of Hamilton township into two election districts, will meet for the purpose of their appointment at the West Point hotel on Wednesday, June 17, at 10 a. m. All citizens of the township are requested to attend.

The attorneys of Wilson College have filed a bill in equity in the courts of common pleas of Franklin county asking that William Stake be enjoined from collecting borough and county taxes assessed against the college. The complainants aver that the college is a public charity endowed by private charity, and that the tax is not collectible under the acts of assembly. The solicitors for the college have given an indemnifying bond and the bill will be disposed of on Tuesday, June 23d, at 2 p. m.

Sheriff Greenawalt's bill for May amounts to $271.40, of which $252 was for boarding prisoners and $4.80 for vagrants; $19 for discharging prisoners and $2 for vagrants; $27.90 for incidentals, $2.50 for conveying prisoner to almshouse, $38.20 for conveying prisoner to Huntingdon and $25 for turnkey's salary.

The almshouse requisition for May was $1,196.73, of which $247.50 was for outdoor relief.

The county commissioners have paid Treasurer F. A. Awl of the Pennsylvania state lunatic hospital, $232.50 for the board, medical attendance, etc., of 11 inmates from Franklin county from March 1 to June 1, and to Treasurer Thomas P. Merritt of the state asylum for the chronic insane, Wernersville, $13.14 for the keeping of one patient for the last quarter.

A Minister Assaulted.

Rev. C. L. Ritter had an exciting experience on Saturday night near Scotland. Rev. Ritter is pastor of the Fayetteville, Scotland and Greenvillage Lutheran charge and had been holding services in Scotland. On his way home as he was passing the "three-cornered woods," a short distance east of Scotland, three men came from the woods and stopped him. Two of them seized the horse while the third demanded his money. On being told that he had no money the men became angry and began searching and threatening him and one attempted to climb into the bugy. Mr. Ritter resisted his efforts and urged forward his horse, which is a high spirited animal, and this kept the two men busy. He then struck the one on the wheel and he fell or was thrown to the ground. The horse broke loose from the men and plunged forward dragging the buggy over the man who had fallen to the ground. The reverend gentleman did not stop long to investigate but hurried rapidly on towards his home. The place where the assault occurred is a lonely one and the woods for years past have been used as a camping ground for gypsies and tramps but at present Mr. Hege, the owner, has placed a fence around the woods and only tramps stop there.

Church Notes.

The Reformed Mennonites celebrated the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at their church on Third street, Waynesboro, Sunday morning. Bishop Jacob S. Lehman of Chambersburg, officiated and delivered an able doctrinal sermon.

The Sabbath school of Trinity Lutheran church, Fort Loudon, held its annual Children's day service, Sabbath evening, June 7. Rev. Croft, St. Thomas, and Rev. L. B. Hafer made addresses and the occasion was a most enjoyable one.

The Ladies' benevolent society of Heidleberg Reformed church, Marion, will hold a lawn fete at Oak and Ivy cottage, the home of J. C. Fuss, Kauffman, Saturday evening June 13, where ice cream and cake will be sold for the benefit of the church building fund. All are cordially invited.

The general synod of the Reformed church adjourned its sessions in Dayton, Ohio, Thursday to meet the first Tuesday after Whit Sunday 1899 in Tiffin, Obio. The following amounts were apportioned upon Potomac synod and the request made that they should be made in full: Contingent expenses, $700; home missions, $9700; Harbor of New York, $700; Hungarian work, $840; Germans in large cities, $840; foreign missions, $5100. Owing to doubt as to constitutionality in adopting the new constitution it was agreed to remit the same to the classes. The result was reached only after hours of most earnest discussion. The committee on the state of religion made a report showing that the Reformed church has made most gratifying progress. The statistics of the church are as follows: Synods, 8; classes, 55; ministers, 961; congregations, 1639; members, 226,571; infant baptisms, 42,075; adult baptisms, 5480; additions, 56,265; deaths, 16,166; Sunday schools, 1644; Sunday school scholars, 172,458; students for the ministry, 304; contributed for benefi cence, $676,270; for congregational purposes, $3,067,780.

Chambersburg School Board.

The school board met on Monday evening, the time having been changed so that meetings are now held the second Monday of each month. The tax rate was fixed at 6 mills, same as last year. All the former janitors were re-elected. It was decided to put a steam or hot water heating plant in the Washington street building. The following standing committees, of 3 each, were appointed: Buildings and grounds, fuel and light, books and stationery.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Those Who Have Passed to the Great Beyond—The Death Record In Franklin County and Elsewhere.

Mrs. Rebecca Flack died at her residence, North Main street, Sunday evening after a lengthy illness. Mrs. Flack was one of our oldest citizens and had a large circle of friends and relatives. She was a member of the First Lutheran church. These children survive her: Daniel, George, Charles and Alex. Flack, Miss Mary Flack, all of Chambersburg, and Mrs. Nettie McGrath and Mrs. Julia Reed, Philadelphia. The funeral took place Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. Interment in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Jeremiah Diehl died at his home in Marion Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. He was stricken with paralysis in January but was able to move about and had the use of all his limbs. Mr. Diehl was born near Gettysburg in 1824. He was descended from one of the oldest families in Adams county and was a great-grandson of Frederick Diehl, who moved into the county from the eastern part of the state about the close of the Revolutionary war. He was engaged in the grain business in Gettysburg during the late war and moved to Marion in 1867. There he re-engaged in the grain business and continued in it until a few months ago. Mr. Diehl was a member of the Dunkard church. He was a man of fine business attainments, given to works of charity and rich in the esteem of all who knew him. His wife and two sons, John A. Diehl, of the firm of Coyle & Diehl, Chambersburg, and Edw. B. Diehl, Lehmasters, both engaged in the grain business, survive him. The funeral took place Wednesday at 2 p. m. Interment in the Marion cemetery. Many relatives from Maryland and points in the west were in attendance.

***

Benjamin Price died at his home in Waynesboro Friday evening at 10 o'clock of apoplexy, aged about 70 years. Until about a year ago he was president of the Geiser Mfg. company. A widow and a son survive him. He was a brother of Mrs. Samuel D. Martin, Waynesboro. Mr. Price was one of the founders of the Geiser company and one of its most active promotors. He was a large property holder and owned several farms in addition to his stock in the Geiser company. He was the largest stockholder in the Geiser company. The funeral took place Monday afternoon. Interment in Price's graveyard.

***

Miss Sallie McNaughton, formerly of Mercersburg, died in Chicago Sunday of pneumonia. She was a sister of Mrs. J. W. Rearick, Chambersburg.

***

On Thursday morning of last week John W. Orr died at his home near Greenspring, Cumberland county, from lung trouble, aged 54 years. He was a native of Orrstown, and was married to a Miss Woodburn, who survives with ten children. He was a member of Middle Spring church. His funeral took place Saturday at 10 o'clock, the services being conducted by Rev. S. S. Wylie. Interment in the Newville cemetery.

***

Miss Edna M. Bittinger died at her home at Mont Alto May 28, aged 24 years, 9 months and 7 days. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church of that place, and when in her usual health was a faithful attendant. Her ailment was lung trouble on account of which she has been confined to the house for almost one year.

***

Mrs. Barbara A., wife of James Slichter, died at her home in Letterkenny township on Friday at 10 p. m., aged 58 years. The funeral took place on Monday at 9 a. m. Interment at Pleasant Hall.

***

Mrs. John Berger died on Friday afternoon at the home of her son-in-law, George Crist, in the 58th year of her age. She is survived by two children to her first husband, Mrs. Crist and Edward Babner. Paul Sheets is a brother and Mrs. Mary Bruner, Mrs. Margaret Lader, Chambersburg; Mrs. Barbara Melbert, Columbia, and a sister in Minnesota survive her.

***

Janet L., a little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stake, died at her parents' residence, Catherine street, after a short illness, Monday evening at 7 o'clock, aged 4 years, 7 months and 6 days.

***

John A. Gill died at his home near Mt. Carroll, Illinois, May 4, of inflammation of the brain. Mr. Gill was in his 72nd year, and born in Scotland, this county, Nov. 12, 1824. He leaves a wife, two sons and three daughters and has relatives in our county.

Arranging For Farmers' Institutes.

C. B. Hege, Marion, local member of the State Board of Agriculture, met a number of farmers of the county in the grand jury room Tuesday afternoon to arrange to hold farmers' institutes in our county on the five days of the year ending in March, 1897. Welsh Run, Waynesboro and Chambersburg applied for such institutes and dates will probably soon be assigned them. The meetings will be under the direction of the State Board of Agriculture.

Wilson College Commencement.

The Commencement of Wilson College which closed yesterday marked the end of the first year of President Martin's administration, and the unexampled success of the events of the college week attests the ability with which Dr. Martin directs the affairs of the institution. All of the exercises from the Baccalaureate sermon Sunday night to the Commencement yesterday were attended by large crowds, many visitors coming from distant states. Yesterday twenty-three young women were graduated, the largest class in the history of the institution. The outlook for the coming year is very promising. Wilson now stands in the very front rank of the female educational institutions of the country and the people of Chambersburg and Franklin county are justly proud of her success.

The Doctor Was Ready For Him.

Samuel Duncan, Shippensburg, who has been in the Franklin county courts several times and on the last occasion was ordered from the county for all time, Saturday night put in an appearance at the office of Dr. A. B. Grove in New Franklin and seemed bent on doing the physician bodily harm. He endeavored to pull a revolver from his pocket but the doctor stopped that by covering him with a Remington rifle and at the point of this drove him out of town. Duncan wanted to come to Chambersburg and deliver himself up to Chief of Police Swisher. He came here and at 2 o'clock Sunday morning presented himself at the jail and was locked up. He has not yet been given a hearing.

The Franklin—Huntingdon Senatorial Contest.

The Huntingdon county Republican convention on Tuesday was the hottest ever known in the county. Senator Penrose carried the county against John Wanamaker for U. S. Senator, after a hot fight. The ticket is: Congress, Thad. M. Mahon; Senator, H. C. Chisolm; assembly, P. M. Lytle and John S. Bare; prothonotary; S. A. Steel; register and recorder, B. F. Goddart; district attorney, B. H. Dunn; treasurer, H. S. Musser.

The nomination of Dr. Chisolm decidedly complicates the Franklin-Huntingdon senatorial matter and puts Senator Brewer's candidacy for re-election in jeopardy. Huntingdon Republicans say they will stick it out this time and not again give it to Franklin. Dr. Chisolm is a popular young physician and his friends say he will land in the senate.

A RECORD TO BE PROUD OF.

Sketch of the 77th Regiment Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteers—Many Franklin and Fulton County Boys in the Ranks.

It has been said that if any man would write the events in his life truthfully, holding nothing back, the result would prove a book of absorbing interest. The same is true of the history of the battalions that made the great armies that preserved the Union. These great armies were composed of corps, divisions, brigades and regiments whose services, duties and experiences were so dissimilar that if a faithful record of each were made, it would furnish endless material to the historian, biographer, novelist and true patriot.

There were regiments that endured more; suffered more; lost a greater proportion in battle then the Seventy-seventh, and regiments that suffered and endured much less. But history shows that in no instance did the regiment fail to perform its whole duty. There is not one instance where it fell short of accomplishing all that was expected of it, while the records disclose to the careful investigator, numerous instances where the regiment was complimented for bravery and the exceptional manner in which it acquitted itself in emergencies.

It is faint praise to say that the records show that the Seventy-seventh occupies a prominent place among those regiments which rendered the most signal service throughout the war for the preservation of the Union.

When Abraham Lincoln called for men to fight for the Union "For three years or during the war," Frederick S. Stumbaugh, a lawyer, citizen of Chambersburg, Pa., was authorized to recruit a regiment to be composed of eight companies of infantry and an artillery company—the only formation of its kind in the state.

The authority was received from the War Department August 1st, 1861. Col. Stumbaugh immediately set about recruiting his regiment. A camp of rendezvous was established at Chambersburg where he soon filled up a company and gathered the nucleus of several others. Afterward he removed to Pittsburg. Here the regiment speedily filled up to the minimum in all the companies while some approached the maximum number.

The records show that Lawrence, Lancaster, Huntington, Blair, Franklin, Fulton, Luzerne, Beaver and Allegheny counties contributed the men that filled the ranks of the 77th.

The artillery company was recruited chiefly at Erie by Capt. Muellerand, was subsequently strengthened by recruits under Capt. Peter B. Housum of Chambersburg. The connection of the battery was brief; it was detached in the early part of 1862 when efforts were made to complete the regimental formation in harmony with the rules governing battalions.

The regimental organization was perfected in Pittsburg October 13, when Fred S. Stumbaugh was elected Colonel, Peter B. Housum, Lieutenant Colonel and Stephen N. Bradford, Major.

Company "B" composed exclusively of residents of Pittsburg and vicinity and residents of West Newton joined the regiment just before the organization, contributing directly to that result. The 77th, 78th and 79th regiments composed Gen. Negley's Brigade. The War Department designed this brigade to operate in the Southwest.

The brigade received their colors from the Governor's own hand on the 17th of October in the presence of a vast concourse of the citizens of Pittsburg and Allegheny who assembled on the "Commons" (now the parks) in Allegheny.

The 78th was commanded by Col. Sirwell; the 79th by Col. Hambright. Upon the 18th the brigade embarked for Louisville upon a fleet composed of six steamboats, namely, Sir William Wallace, Clara Poe, J. W. Hailman, Argonaut, Moderator and Silver Wave. (The last mentioned, by the way, has become historical; it was the Silver Wave that was selected to carry the cannon from the Allegheny Arsenal to the South when Floyd, Secretary of War under Buchanan, was depleting the arsenals of cannon, small arms and amunition. The citizens of Pittsburg rose en masse and prevented the secretary from carrying out his plans in this instance.)

The brigade reached Louisville on the 21st. The Confederates under General Simon Bolivar Buckner, had made demonstrations against Louisville, whose citizens were glad to see the Boys in Blue. Although sentiment in Louisville and throughout Kentucky was divided the great majority of the citizens of Louisville did not desire the success of Buckner's forces, who withdrew from Muldraugh's hill upon learning of the approach of Negley's brigade.

The brigade was transported to a camp about 50 miles from Louisville by rail; the only time it was transported any considerable distance in that manner; it was fated to tramp the remainder of its long service. The records show that the 77th marched altogether 3,682 miles. This calculation takes no account of the many miles traveled on picket duty.

General Anderson of Fort Sumpter fame, was in command of the Union forces. His broken health rendered a successor necessary; to General William Tecumseh Sherman was entrusted the task of mobilizing and disciplining the raw recruits. Under his directions brigades were reorganized. The 77th Pa. was placed under the command of Gen. Thos. J. Woods who had charge of the Fifth brigade of the Second division of the Army of the Ohio. Subsequently the Fifth brigade was known as the Second Brigade of the Second Division of the Army of the Cumberland.

In the early part of Gen. Buell's services, or rather when Army Corps were made, Buell's army constituted the 20th Army Corps; subsequently the division, (which was under the command of Gen. Alex. McDowell McCook), corps commander, it was known as the Fourth Corps which was commanded by Gen. George H. Thomas, "The Rock of Chickamauga."

The Fifth brigade was composed of the 77th Pa., 29th and 30th Indiana and 34th Illinois. Together these regiments participated in the campaigns fought in the Southwest. Upon its flag is inscribed the battles of Shiloh, Corinth, Fern Creek, Claysville, Perrysville, Lawrenceburg, LaVerne, Murfreesborough, Stone River, Liberty Gap, Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain, Tunnel Hill, Ressacca, Kensington, New Hope Church, Kenesaw Mountain, Smyrna Camp, Chatta Hootchie River, Peach Tree, Atlanta, Jonesboro, Lovejoy, Franklin, Nashville.

The 77th made the last charge at Shiloh and was complimented in special orders for the manner in which it discharged its duty on that, the first occasion offered to test its qualities. General Sherman paid the regiment a marked compliment upon the evening of the second day's fight.

When Gen. Rosecrans was preparing for his second advance upon the forces under Gen. Bragg, reviewing the brigade at Murfreesboro, he paused in front of the 77th Pa. Addressing its Colonel, he said: "I see that your regiment is all right. Give my compliments to the boys and tell them that I say it is the banner regiment; at Stone River they never broke their ranks."

At the close of the war the 77th was sent to Texas. The duties were arduous; much sickness and suffering resulted; death made serious inroads in the ranks. Finally on the sixth day of December, 1865, the regiment was mustered out of service at Victoria; the regiment was paid in Philadelphia on the 16th of January, being the last, save one, of all the Pennsylvania regiments in the field, but to the 77th belongs the credit of having served continuously longer than any other Pennsylvania regiment in the war.

In January, 1865, when the regiment had served three years, and the government called upon the men who had served it faithfully, to re-enlist, the greater portion of the men assented. The regiment was greatly reduced. In March, 1865, it was re-enforced by five new companies; viz., Company "D," Capt. James Shaw; Company "E," Capt. S. J. Brauff; Company "F," Capt. Daniel Shock; Company H," Capt. Paul F. Rohrbacher. Companies "E" and "D" were recruited in Pittsburg; Company "F" in Blair county and Company "H" in Beaver and Lawrence counties.

The 77th was the first regiment in Western Pennsylvania. I am not sure that it was not the first in the state that had a reunion. There were company reunions—no regimental reunion was held until the 77th set the example. An example that has become quite common. The first reunion was held in Lafayette Hall, "The cradle of the Republican Party." It was one of the largest and proved the most successful in every way. The date of the first reunion has escaped my memory. Since reunions were held at Chambersburg, September, 6, 1869; Harrisburg, October 6, 1870; Lancaster, September 21, 1871; Pittsburg, November 15, 1872; Pittsburg, October 6, 1884, and in Pittsburg, October 1, 1889. The last reunion was held in Pittsburg, September 13, 1894, at which time Captain George W. Skinner was elected President of the Seventy-seventh Regiment Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteer Association. Captain Henry S. Wishart of Harrisonville, Fulton county, and Capt. John W. Krepps of Allegheny City, were elected vice presidents; W. J. Prentice, Pittsburg, treasurer; Campbell Stanton, secretary, and David Lowry, Pittsburg, historian.

In submitting this brief sketch of the Seventy-seventh, the writer must plead inability to place his hands upon data which is indispensable to anything approaching a complete record of the services rendered by the regiment. Two diaries are in existence containing sufficent material to make a small volume; neither of these are available at this writing but it is known that they are in trustworthy hands.

I cannot resist the temptation, however, before closing this meagre sketch of the Seventy-seventh, of recalling an incident in the experience of the regiment which illustrates the sentiments that animated the men.

While the volunteers were in the field risking their all for the preservation of the Union, and thousands of wives and children had to be provided for, while the loyal portion of the public were straining every effort in the task of feeding the needy, clothing the children whose natural protectors were in the ranks, and succoring the sick and wounded—some one suggested it would be a good thing to arrange matters so that a soldier's wife or family could receive so much of his pay at home without waiting until the men would be paid and time lost sending it home, to say nothing of the risk.

What were termed "Allotment" rolls were prepared; the men indicated on the rolls how much should be paid the folks at home, reserving such amount as they deemed necessary for their own use. Four months pay were due when the first "Allotment" rolls were submitted to the 77th. The proportion sent home by one company will serve to show how the proposition was received.

The company was entitled to $4,992 pay for 70 men and three officers. Remember the men had received nothing for four months. The officers had to purchase all they ate, yet the company sent home, or "Allotted" to their families $3,880 out of $4,992, reserving $1,112—less than a fourth of the total. Many of the men did not keep a dollar for their own use.

Search the records of all the wars, ancient or modern; nowhere else upon the page of history will be found such evidences of faithfulness and love for wives and children, brothers and sisters and parents and unfaltering patriotism as is furnished by these figures.

Supt. Arnold of Perry county, has granted a provisional certificate to each of the graduating class of Newport, entitling them to teach in the Perry county schools, without further examination, except on the theory of teaching. These scholars were graduated under the principalship of Prof. E. H. Bryner, brother of Superintendent Bryner of Shippensburg.

Edward Hoffman and J. Frank Thomas have brought suit at Hagerstown against the Cumberland Valley Railroad Company. The plaintiffs claim that in September last they contracted with the railroad to ship seven carloads of peaches to New York by passenger from $40 to $50 more a car than by freight. The peaches were delayed from 8 to 24 hours en route, spoiled, and had to be sold at a loss.

Hagerstown's council and the water company have entered into a new contract, by which that town is to have at last an increased supply of South mountain water. The contract calls for the diversion of Warer's Gap stream and Raven Rock stream, near Edgemont, into the reservoir near Cavetown. It is stated these additions will cost $40,000, as they are three and one-half miles from the reservoir. The water company is now negotiating for the right of way. The town by the new agreement pays $1,000 a year for fifty-six fire plugs now in use and $45 a year for each fire plug hereafter ordered.

Report of Commander Cumings and of the Other Officers at the Encampment Here Last Week.

Department Commander Cumings' address set forth in brief a statement of the finances of the department. He showed that economy had been practiced in the disbursements for the year, that the methods of accounts were well systematized and that all the records of this department were in a satisfactory condition.

It has been the custom, he said, to distribute charities at headquarters from the treasury of the department. Believing that these charities should be provided for elsewhere and not from the funds belonging to the entire department this expenditure, usally amounting to $300, or more per year, was discontinued after January 1, 1896.

Commander Cumings called special attention to the fact that there have been some practical economies put in force at department headquarters in the reduction of expenses for office duties, etc. The average annual expenses of the department for the nine years including February 1886 to February 1894 were $10,-082.58—the expenses for the department from March 1895, to date, including the contract price for printing the roll and reports of officers for this encampment, a period of fifteen months, have been $8460,15, showing a saving of $1623.43 for the term.

Attention is called to the matter that the figures regarding membership are now based on the number of comrades paying the per capita tax, so that the estimates reported by the officers of the posts show the actual membership in good standing. This change in reporting accounts for the large decrease in membership, if judged by reports made for several years past.

The commander has visited, during the past year, many of the posts in the state, all of the homes and three of the orphans' schools and the management of the wards of the state meets with the approval of the commander.

The last national encampment at Louisville is passed over with a reference praising the hospitality of the southern G. A. R. and commending the department of Pennsylvania for its large representation there.

Department Inspector Charles A. Suydam has visited most of the posts of the state and his work has been very valuable and his reports very satisfactory to the department officers. The habit of many post officials in being dilatory in making reports and the misspelling of names and addresses was condemned.

The several institutions in the state to care for soldiers and their children were visited by the commander and their work was commended without exception. The soldiers' orphans' schools and their management are awarded an extra meed of praise. A mistaken economy has, however, marred their work at Scotland. About $150,000 has already been expended at Scotland and its accommodations are now full with 233 children. $100,000 addditional expenditure will increase the capacity of this school to 1000 children. All the orphans' schools are now full, Chester Springs with 321, Uniontown with 311, Hartford with 201. More than 200 applications for admission are on file awaiting vacancies and there would be many more could they be received.

As to the all-absorbing matter of pensions Commander Cummings has this significant utterance: "Early in the administration of Commander-in-Chief Walker, he named Comrade Benjamin Brooke of Post 1, as chairman of the national pension committee—the first step of the chairman was to call to his aid those comrades who had a special and ripe experience in pension legislation, from those he gathered facts, and through him these facts were crystalized, and under the action of the committee an entirely new pension bill was presented to the congressional committee, and this bill had elminated all the features which have heretofore permitted diametrical constructions to be placed on the same sections. The present national committee under the guidance of one of our own comrades has the work so well in hand and has made such progress with it, that I refer to the matter here only in a general way, as I am thoroughly convinced that the national pension committee will use every effort to bring about wholesome and satisfactory legislation."

It is suggested that the rules and regulations regarding "suspensions" be changed.

"The record of disbanded posts and lost membership is much larger than properly belongs to the account of this administration. We have been trying to clear out the deadwood and get down to the living and the active but it is a fact that the grand army is declining in numbers. As to maintaining the membership I think of no way to do this except by some system of non-resident membership in the posts located in the centres of population, a membership for comrades living at a distance, costing but a nominal amount but keeping our scattered comrades in close touch with the organization and looking after its work and interests in their several localities. Where possible sub-organizations or picket posts might be organized."

The commander gave special praise to the work of the sons of veterans during the year and recommended the order to the support of the encampment.

He also commended the Woman's Relief Corps and the Ladies of the G. A. R. He also complimented each member of his staff on the work done by him.

He thanked everybody for the support given him and said he would drop back into the ranks with feelings of gratitude for honors received.

The report of Assistant Adjutant General James Morrison showed that four posts were mustered in during the year and 16 posts were disbanded. The total loss of membership was 861 in the year and the total membership in good standing December 31, 1895, numbered 36,-876.

Assistant Quartermaster General Levering reported the receipts from March 1, 1895, to May 30, 1896, as $8,594.48, and the expenditures $8,-210.15.

The report of the council of administration, Levi W. Shengle, W. J. Patterson, S. Lloyd Fleming, David S. McClure and Wm. J. Wray, shows that the receipts were $12,095.31 and the disbursements, $11,891.95. The value of the property at headquarters is estimated at $3,479.98, an increase of $2,887.49 since the encampment of 1895. Donations to headquarters since then have amounted to $939.48.

One of the Shortest Strikes.

"J. Q. Van Winkle, general superintendent of the Big Four, once made the quickest settlement of a big strike on record," said the old-timer.

"It was at Springfield, O., I think. The men, or a great portion of them had gone out, and an effort was made to get the others to strike. Van Winkle arrived and found the town placarded with notices that there was to be a mass meeting of railroad men at a certain hall to take some action on the strike. He said that he would attend the meeting. The men were inclined to be turbulent, and an attempt was made to persuade him not to go. But at the hour set he presented himself at the door of the hall and was stopped by the sentry, who informed him that he could not come in.

"'That's a railroad man's meeting, isn't it, Jack?' asked Van Winkle, who knows nearly every man on the system by his first name.

"'That's what it is.'

"'Well, I'm a railroad man, and I want to come in.'

"'Can't do it, Van. The boys would object.'

"'You don't dispute my being a railroad man do you?'

"'Oh, no; you are a railroader all right; but not the kind we want at this meeting.'

"'Jack, I tell you what to do. You go in and tell the boys that I am out here and want to come in. I don't think many of them will object.'

"The doorkeeper went inside, and in a few minutes returned and invited Van Winkle into the hall. As soon as he was past the door a yell that shook the building went up. Before there were any deliberations, Van Winkle was called on for a speech. He got on the platform and talked to a lot of men he used to do yard work with, pointed out to them the mistake they were making, and assured them that he would see that any just grievances they had would be righted at once. When he had finished he was asked to retire, and as he left the room more than half the men walked out with him, remarking: 'What Van says is good enough for us.' In one hour's time the strike was at an end, and all the men were at their places. Van Winkle investigated the cause of the trouble and arranged matters satisfactorily to all concerned."—Indianopolis Journal.

Are You Good at Figures.

"Are you good at figures?" asked Mr. Bentley of Mr. Groves, who occupied the next desk to the right.

"I used to be," replied Mr. Groves. "Why do you ask?"

"I have a little problem here. Take it down and see what you can do with it. 'A man has $100 with which to buy 100 head of stock. He pays $10 a head for cattle, $3 a head for hogs and 50 cents a head for sheep. How many of each does he buy?'"

"Do you know the answer?"

"Yes; it's very simple when you get it."

"I think it can be worked by algebra. I'm a little rusty, but I'll see what I can do."

Bently turned to his routine of desk work and Groves started in to solve the problem. In about a half-hour, having covered several pages of paper with x, y and z calculations, he asked suddenly: "Is there any way to make it come out even?"

"Make what come out even?" asked Bently, who had forgotten all about the problem. "So you're still working at that, are you? Can't you get it?"

"No not yet; but it can be worked."

All morning Groves struggled with the live stock and at noon he was mad and discouraged. "What's the answer, anyway," he asked.

"I'll show you," said Bently, and he marked down:

5 cattle at $10	$50
1 hog at $3	3
94 sheep at 50 cents	47
100	$100

"How did you work it?" asked Groves.

"I didn't work it. A fellow told me the answer."

"What made you give it to me, then?"

"I thought you might be able to guess it."

"Well." said Mr. Groves, "you keep your fool problems to yourself."

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The TIMES is a newspaper for intelligent men and women who want to read all the news of the world every day. The paper has distinguishing merits of its own. It is neither sensational nor dull. It is not sour-tempered. It is not frivolous or visionary. It sees plenty of good in the world and tells about it. It tells of the bad when it must, but not unwholesomely. It prints with fullness the record of human endeavor in many fields outside of business, politics and war—in literature, religion, science, art, sports and household matters. No paper in the country prints so many book reviews and so much book news. No paper has so complete a financial page—a daily manual for investors and officers of financial institutions. Its market reports—wool, cotton, breadstuffs, farm products, &c.—are the best in the country.

The Democracy of THE TIMES is of the old-fashioned sort—as old as Thomas Jefferson; majority rule, no bossism, no machine tyranny, the divorce of politics from private money-making, a sound currency, industrial emancipation, and every-day honesty. To promote the advance of the Democratic party along these lines it labors with heart and conscience and all its might.
